

THE GOOD OLD DAYS

Mame didn't drive so when she needed a few groceries and the men were busy in the fields she would leave money and a note in the mailbox for the mailman. He would go to the store in Rosemount and the next day Mame would find the loaf of bread or maybe tea (of which she was very fond) in the mailbox.